

Commercial Vehicle Roadworthiness Test

Requirement for Presenter ID

You are now required to produce personal identification* when you are getting your commercial vehicle tested. Failure to produce the required identification (driving licence/passport) will mean that the vehicle cannot be issued with a Certificate of Roadworthiness until you have produced your Presenter ID. Please ensure you have your identification with you when you bring the vehicle for a test as you will be asked to produce it.

For further information please see www.CVRT.ie

* Recording presenter IDs helps the performance management of test centres and ensures a higher quality of commercial vehicle testing
