Your Certificate of Roadworthiness (CRW) Explained

- 1. CVRT Hologram and RSA Message - This section has a hologram security feature displaying the CVRT logo. There is also a section for messages that the RSA may use from time to time to display information relevant to the bearer of a CRW certificate. For example, a link to this explanatory document on the RSA website.
- 2. Registered Owner Name and Address - CRW's are now posted automatically to the registered owner of the vehicle as per the Driver and Vehicle Computer Services Division (DVCSD) of the Department of Transport.

3. Vehicle Details and Odometer Readings

- Unique Vehicle Identification Number (VIN)
- Unique Vehicle Registration number
- Place and date of test
- Odometer reading (at the time the vehicle passed the test) and the previous two readings from the previous two test passes
- Odometer Readings - Your CRW will show the vehicle's mileage history. Where available the mileage history will comprise of the reading associated with the three most recent CVR Tests.
- Vehicle Category

Odometer readings must be confirmed by the owner or presenter at the time of the test as they cannot be amended retrospectively

4. CVR Test details

- Identified deficiencies and their level of severity
- Test result
- CRW expiry date, (i.e. the next test due date)
- Unique number for the CVR testing centre where the test was carried out
- Unique identifier for the person (CVR tester) that carried out the test

5. Other Information

- Unique Test ID No.
- Vehicle Make/Model
- Vehicle Colour
- DGVW/OCF
- Unique serial number for the CRW certificate and disc

- 6. Detachable CRW disc – It is now a legal requirement to display this disc on the vehicle to which it relates. In the case of a trailer this can be displayed on the chassis. A sample of the information above is included on the display disc. The 'binocular design' detachable disc should be folded in half with the CVRT logo facing outwards.
